Biographical Sketch

Jarold Knox Zeman was born as Jaroslav Zeman in 1926 at Semonice, Czechoslovakia, now in the Czech Republic. Zeman grew up in a Presbyterian household and attended the Charles University in Prague in 1945 for philosophy, before joining the university's Hus Presbyterian Theological Seminary in 1946 to study theology. In 1948, the World Council of Churches awarded Zeman a scholarship to continue studies at Knox College in Toronto. During his early time in Canada, Zeman converted to the Baptist denomination. After finishing his studies in 1949, Zeman received a warning about the danger in returning to Czechoslovakia.ⁱ Instead of returning home Zeman decided to stay in Canada, becoming a citizen in 1955 and changing his name to Jarold Knox Zeman.

From 1949 to 1955 Zeman pastored at the Czechoslovak Baptist Church in Toronto serving Czech speakers who had recently arrived in Canada, while during this period in 1951 he married Lilian Koncicky of Esterhazy, Saskatchewan eventually having four children: Timothy, Janice, Miriam, and Dagmar. After 1955 Zeman became pastor for an English-speaking congregation at the Villanova Baptist Church in Brantford, Ontario, while also working with Czech speaking immigrants in London, Ontario until 1959.ⁱⁱ From 1959 to 1968, Zeman worked for the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, joining the Home Mission Board. During this period, Zeman took a leave of study, traveling with his wife to the University of Zurich and obtaining a doctorate of theology. Even after leaving the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, Zeman remained in contact with individuals at both the Convention and the University of Zurich.

In 1969, Zeman joined the newly reorganized Acadia Divinity College of Acadia University as an associate professor. From then until 1991 he taught a variety of courses in Church History and became involved in multiple groups at the University. While teaching at Acadia Divinity College Zeman wrote many of his works on the history of Canadian Maritime Baptists and on the Anabaptists, Czech Brethren, and Hussites of Reformation Bohemia and Moravia. In addition to these responsibilities, Zeman was heavily involved in a variety of Baptist conferences and organizations in North America including from 1979 to 1982 serving as president of the Baptist Federation of Canada.ⁱⁱⁱ After retiring from his position as professor, Zeman remained involved at Acadia University through founding and serving as director of the Acadia Centre for Baptist and Anabaptist Studies from 1991 to 1996.

Jarold Knox Zeman passed away on September 18, 2000, in Wolfville, Nova Scotia. Zeman left a large impact in the Canadian Baptist community, having significant involvement in several different organizations like the Believer's Church Conference, the CBC Advisory Committee on Religion, and the Baptist Federation of Canada's Interchurch Relations Committee. Jarold Knox Zeman was also an important church historian of the 20th century. In his published research were definitive works on 16th century Anabaptist and Czech Brethren history^{iv} and Zeman had a significant role in the renaissance of Maritime Baptist studies. As a professor, church historian, and pastor Zeman cultivated links between important Baptist organizations and people as well as connecting with other denominations in Canada.

Custodial History

The fonds is comprised of multiple donations given by both Dr. J. K. Zeman and by his family members after his death. (Janice Zeman, Timothy Zeman, Dagmar Carter, and Lillian Zeman) The majority of these donations occurred between 1985 and 2015, with two accessions (1900.063-ZEM, 1900.085-ZEM) having unknown dates of acquisition. Certain records that were within these donations were determined to not be a part of Zeman's records and have been separated into their own fonds. (1900.600, 1900.601-WHI, 1900.602-WEI) Additional information is contained in the related accessions section of General Notes.
